GOLO
for Life

As is quite obvious for everyone to see, cancer is by far one of the deadliest diseases in the world. To put things into perspective, it bears pointing out that as per a study released by the WHO, it has been found to be the cause of one in every six deaths to take place globally. If that wasn't enough, the CDC (Centre for Disease Control and Prevention) recently revealed in a study that every minute, a total of three new people are diagnosed with cancer in the United States.

From a treatment standpoint, what makes cancer unique is that it can happen to anyone and there is no one prevention method that seems to work across the board in relation to this life-threatening disease.

A Closer Look at the Project

Many of our readers may remember that The Truth About Cancer (TTAC) was a three-part documentary that aired across a host of mainstream media avenues from 2014-2016. As part of the documentary, the creators explored in detail a number of traditional, cost-effective methods of treating cancer as well as various ways in which western healthcare systems are repeatedly exploiting their patients by keeping them bound to different drugs and medicines, the profits from which run into the trillions.

Additionally, TTAC also investigated the underbelly of the global medical mafia and how many individuals suffering from cancer are forced to stay bound to certain treatment methods for years just because hospitals, doctors and medicine manufacturers stand to make vast amounts of profit at the pain, suffering and misery of their patients.

What is The Answer to Cancer?

As with TTAC, The Answer to Cancer also seeks to help educate cancer patients about the truth behind this disease as well as the various treatment options, both traditional and alternative, that are available in the market today. To be a bit more specific, The Answer to Cancer is a 9-part docuseries that consists of a number of detailed, insightful interviews from doctors, experts and patients who share their personal experiences of dealing with cancer and the various treatment methods and protocols they have used to cure themselves of the disease.

The core message of the series is to help spread the message of hope as well as to dispel many of the negative notions that have become synonymous with cancer in recent decades.

Some interesting facts about cancer worth knowing

Most of our readers are probably aware of the fact that Cancer is among the deadliest diseases ever. To put things into perspective, a study released by the National Cancer Institute has revealed that 8.2 million cancer-related deaths take place worldwide every year. Lesser developed nations (especially in certain regions of Asia, Africa and Central America), accounted for a whopping 57% of all new cancer cases. If that wasn't enough, 65% of all cancer deaths were also found to have occurred in these countries.

If things continue to head in the direction they seem to be now, it is estimated that by the year 2030 the total number of new cancer cases will rise to a whopping 23.6 million.

Looking at data pertaining solely to the United States, in 2018, the NCI found that a mammoth 1,735,350 new cases of cancer were diagnosed in the United States with the research body estimating that a minimum of 609,640 people will die from the disease within a span of 12 months.

From a purely financial standpoint, it is estimated that the total national expenditure for cancer in the USA per annum works out to a massive total of $147.3 billion. However, what is more striking is the fact that these costs are most likely expected to surge as a bulk of the American population continues to age and the prevalence of cancer-type diseases continues to increase.

Cancer mortality rates are considerably lower in developed nations such as America, England, France, etc. when compared to smaller countries located in Africa, South America, etc.
